

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE:

A method and device multiplexes a first transmission channel having a first transmission time interval for data unit transmission and at least one second transmission channel having a second transmission time interval for data unit transmission. A stream of placeholder bits is supplied to a channel multiplexing function of the at least one second transmission channel. The placeholder bits are then replaced at a later stage by an actual data stream of the first transmission channel.